

MIDDLETON TOLD HIS SIDE OF STORY

Logsdon's Brother-in-Law Admitted Warning Furnas to Quit "Digging."

BUT DID IT AS A FRIEND

He Declared that Furnas Had Asked Him to Go into the Sprinkling Business.

The evidence before the Council investigating committee last night consisted of the cross-examination of John H. Furnas, the testimony of Albert J. Middleton, brother-in-law of Edwin D. Logsdon, and of the reading from the records of the assessment bureau by Fred Owens and Louis Ziegler.

The testimony of Furnas and Middleton, as to what took place between them when Furnas asked Middleton to give him information about the sweeping contract was radically different, although it was brought out that the two are members of the same friends' church and have known each other since they were boys.

Logsdon's attorney asked Furnas questions intended to show that Furnas had been more at the city administration. The questions were long and many of them were double. Attorney and witness talked amicably.

Furnas said he would answer yes or no if the attorney would ask questions that could be so answered. Matson finally divided his questions. Edwin D. Logsdon took a hand.

John B. Duncan, representing the contractors whom Logsdon sued for libel, suggested by questions that it was inconsistent for Middleton to testify that he never visited Furnas in his life, nor Furnas him, yet to say that he went to Furnas when the sprinkling and sweeping scandals came out and cautioned him as a friend that it would be wise for him not to get mixed up. Especially did attorney Duncan dwell on the inconsistency.

At this point a laughable incident came. Logsdon's attorney brought out the fact that Furnas signed the Republican protest against the snap convention, although Furnas was a resident of Woodruff Place. Furnas said he would "fess up." He had signed it, but was in Indianapolis at the time he signed it. Logsdon is chairman of the Republican city committee, and the names of the protestants are in his possession.

Advised by Attorney.

When Furnas was asked why he wanted to get stuff in the newspapers about Middleton's call on him, Furnas answered that Middleton had told him "they would dig things up" and Furnas told him he would not take a threat like that. Furnas testified that he consulted an attorney about the Middleton threat and that his attorney advised him to make it public. He was willing to have everything "dug up" and in public.

Furnas testified that Jesse Ferguson, Adair Ferguson, "Old Man" Williams and Jesse Williams, employees of the Marion County Construction Company, had told him of the number of side sweepers used by the city.

Furnas testified that, in his opinion, the number was too small to do the work. Furnas said that Frank Coffin, who testified to hearing a conversation between Furnas and Middleton, was a friend of Furnas's, and that the sprinkling contract, was mistaken. Coffin said Frank Logsdon, a contractor, talked to him one day, and he thought Coffin mistook him for Logsdon.

Logsdon asked Furnas if he did not within two weeks after Logsdon became a member of the Board of Public Works ask that a part of the sprinkling fund be transferred to the sweeping fund. Furnas said he did not.

Middleton's Story.

Albert J. Middleton, Logsdon's brother-in-law and partner in the broom business, testified that in February, 1902, Furnas came to his factory and asked if he was friendly to the administration. Witness answered that he was, that he had always been a Republican, but not for revenue only. Witness said Furnas told him he would like for him to secure the sweeping contract.

Witness said that he did not care to talk to Furnas unless he had "masta" in the stomach. Four other organs are affected, but the digestive tract is the seat of the trouble. If you will try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets and stop experimenting with other remedies you will prove for yourself all I have told you. These tablets cure quickly and permanently the most obstinate and painful cases of Dyspepsia.

Butler Athletic Election.

The Butler College Athletic Association held its annual election of officers to-day. The following men were chosen: President, Jason G. Elston; vice-president, Horace Russell; secretary and treasurer, Charles E. Underwood; board of control, Orlando E. Jones, Demarchus Brown, Jr. and Lloyd Gresham.

There were no fraternal clashes, as is usual, over the elections. Two of the officers are members of the Delta Tau Gamma fraternity and the rest are "barbs."

William Kobbe Missing.

His Wife Has Asked the Police to Search for Him.

Mrs. William Kobbe asked the police to-day to search for her husband. She said he disappeared Monday morning, and that she has not heard from him since. Kobbe was employed until about a week ago as a bookmaker at the Daniel Stewart Drug Company. Mrs. Kobbe said she lost his position and was dependent on the street. She was asked if she was apprehensive that he had made such a "bad" proposition to him. Kobbe formerly lived in Ripley, O., with these people. His home is at the street and his record showed that the street was swept only sixteen times in the period named.

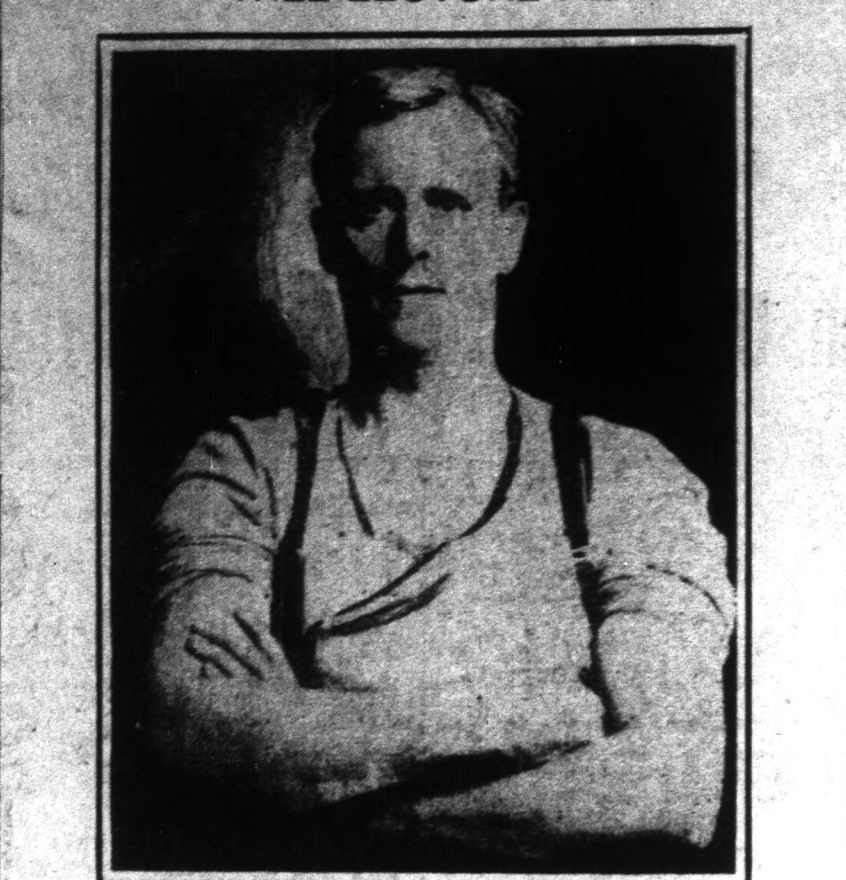

The committee will meet again Thursday night.

REXALL DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

THE REV. GEORGE L. McNUTT WILL LECTURE HERE FRIDAY

THE REV. GEORGE L. McNUTT.

The Rev. George L. McNutt, who is to lecture at Tomlinson Hall, Friday evening, once occupied a pulpit in this city. In 1899 he was a student at Princeton and graduated with the highest honors at Wabash College in 1882. While in Indianapolis, he began to give close attention to social problems, and had in contemplation the work which he has since undertaken. About five years ago, resigning his pulpit at Champaign, Ill., he began to live as a laboring man, both with the view of gaining a living and gathering experience. He worked as a common hand in the cities of the gas belt and of evenings wrote of his experiences for The News. Afterward he found his way to Pittsburgh and other Eastern cities, working as a roustabout in rolling mills, etc. His articles in The News drew so much attention that he was asked to lecture before the Social Settlement Association of Chicago, and kindred organizations. It was apparent that the platform was his forte. For three years Mr. McNutt has lectured in various parts of the country with success. His descriptions and arguments are drawn from the fund of his own experiences as a workingman. He is unconventional and picturesque in everything he does and says.

Taggart once said that he (Furnas) could get a contract if he'd take Charles Stuckmeyer in Middleton said Furnas offered him (Middleton) one-fourth of the earnings, which would be from $3,000 to $5,000 a year, and told him he need not invest a dollar nor do any work if he would get the sweeping contract for 1902.

Witness said he asked Furnas if he was not old enough to know that making such a proposition to city officials was knocking at the prison door. Witness said Furnas answered that he was not talking to a city official.

Middleton testified that Furnas came to him later and said he would like to have specifications provided for improved machinery. Middleton said he understood Furnas wanted his pneumatic sweepers described, so that he could get the contract. Middleton admitted that he went to Furnas's factory April 2 to talk to Furnas about the charges that had become public. He told Furnas that a man like him had no business to be digging things up for if there was any investigation they would be able to "dig you up." Witness

A Good Year for the Local Unions of Christian Endeavorers.

The Christian Endeavorers of Indianapolis held an enthusiastic mass meeting at the Sixth Christian church last night. The speakers were the Rev. Asa L. Orcutt, the Rev. D. D. Heron, the Rev. O. C. Hood, George S. Applegate, Mrs. B. S. Gadd and President White.

President White said that the local union had taken on new life, the attendance being larger and more interest being shown in the work. Few societies, he said, had reported less than a 10 per cent. increase in membership, and many had reported a 25 per cent. increase. He said he hoped to make this the best year for every one to join in the effort. The outstanding membership in the year 1902 was 800. The increase movement had exceeded all expectations, and if the work continued it would be by far the best and most prosperous year the society had known.

Plea in Abatement in Dudley Case.

A plea in abatement has been filed in the Federal court by the defendants in the case of Fannie Bush, the mother of James Dillard, against Sheriff John Dudley, of Sullivan county, and his bondsmen. The plea sets forth that the Tennessee court had no jurisdiction in appointing Mrs. Bush administratrix, that Dillard had no property and was a resident of this State.

Glass Plant Will be Closed.

Ray J. Jencks, receiver for the Terre Haute Glass Company, appeared before Judge Anderson, yesterday afternoon, and was granted power to close the plant. An order was issued to the receiver, April 18, stating that the plant was to be in operation, but the receiver explains that the plant was being run at a loss.

Consumption.

April 8, 1903.

I was afflicted with all the symptoms of first and second stages of consumption. Doctors advised me to go to New Mexico, dry climate, and consider myself a well man to-day. I wish you could make this the best year for every one to join in the effort. The outstanding membership in the year 1902 was 800. The increase movement had exceeded all expectations, and if the work continued it would be by far the best and most prosperous year the society had known.

SAD HE DELIBERATELY SHOT FATHER-IN-LAW

STORY OF MURDERER HOOVER TO THE POLICE.

HOW HE WAS CAPTURED

Edward Hoover, the young man who murdered his father-in-law, Frank Sutton, by shooting him to death, yesterday afternoon, waived examination in the Police Court, this morning, and was bound over to the grand jury.

The evidence secured by the police tends to show that Hoover deliberately planned and executed the murder. He bought a new revolver and a box of cartridges, and then called his wife by telephone and told her that she had better have her father come to his rooms and get her effects. When Sutton came, Hoover killed him.

The story of Hoover's capture is interesting. A large detail of police arrived at Hoover's rooms, at 535 West Maryland street, a few minutes after the shooting. Hoover had escaped, and there were few persons in the neighborhood who knew his name or anything about him. The dead man was unknown at the time. The descriptions of Hoover were so conflicting that the police were in a quandary.

Picked Up a Note Book.

Finally one of them picked up a small note book which had been dropped by the murderer while running from the place. Captain Kruger, who had charge of the police, found the telephone number, "Brown, 2678," written on one of the leaves. He called this number and the person answering was Mrs. Hoover, who lives with the Sutton family on the Shover farm, near the Bluff road, south of the city. She told Kruger the full name of her husband, and also told him that her father was in the city to see Hoover.

Kruger got a description of the murderer from his wife, and the police were sent out in all directions. Patrolmen were stationed near the outskirts of the city, to watch all the interurban lines, and bicyclists were dispatched in every direction to intercept the fugitive.

Detective Haley took a Broad Ripple car and got off at Thirty-fourth street. There is a woods nearby, and the detective took a seat on a stump of a tree and waited for an hour or more. During that time he let his seat and stopped one man who answered in a measure the description of the murderer. The man stopped proved to be the satisfaction of Haley that he was not the man wanted.

Spotted His Man.

Haley finally began patrolling Thirty-fourth street. Near Meridian street he saw a man walking on the opposite side of the street whose description tallied minutely with that of Hoover. Haley crossed over to the south side of the street, in which the man was walking, and the man, in turn, crossed over to the north side. Haley was satisfied he was Hoover, and crossed over in front of the man. When about to pass him, Haley reached out and seized the man by the wrist. With his other hand the detective jerked a revolver from the man's pocket.

The man admitted that he was Hoover, and on the way down-town on a street car he told about the shooting. He said he had a quarrel with Sutton about certain articles belonging to his wife which Sutton had come after and deliberately shot him. A few minutes later Hoover used a knife to cut his wife's throat. He had made a mistake in confessing and he then told a story of Sutton drawing a knife on him, and that he shot in self-defense. The four bullet wounds in Sutton's body show that the knife shot was a defense. There was no knife found about the place. At the police station Hoover assumed a vacant stare and refused to answer any more questions. Sutton leaves a widow, three daughters and a sixteen-year-old son. Hoover is the oldest daughter. The police thought that Hoover might attempt to kill his wife and her children. Hoover was sent to the Shover farm to protect the Sutton family from grief-stricken. When talked to kindly by Captain Kruger, the son, a manly little fellow, said that he would support the family.

At last, we have a criminal conviction under the Sherman anti-trust law. In the United States District Court of California the Federal Salt Company, a New Jersey corporation, was convicted of maintaining a monopoly, on a plea of guilty. Sentence will be pronounced to-morrow. The maximum fine is $5,000. The company has already been defeated in a civil suit, and the finding in that case resulted in annulling all its contracts. It is said that the company had a complete monopoly of the salt business in California, and that it had advanced the price of salt from $2 and 50¢ to $3 and 50¢ a ton. Clearly this was one of the "bad" trusts of which we have heard so much from the President. We see here what monopoly is, and how pernicious is its influence when wholly unaffected by competition.

Learned doctors of the law had told us that the anti-trust act could not be enforced, and that it was not worth while to talk about it. The plain truth is that there was no determined effort to enforce it until Mr. Roosevelt became President. Then his inspiration, and with the courageous co-operation of Attorney-General Knox and his subordinates, we have been able to impress even on Wall street the fact that the Government of the United States is more powerful than even a Morgan merger, and that law is meant for the rich and powerful quite as much as for the poor and weak. The lesson is one that we all need to learn.

LIBEL IN PENNSYLVANIA.
Governor Pennypacker has signed the new libel law, over the protest of the leading papers of Pennsylvania. The reasons he gives for his act are so weak as to indicate that the cause itself must be bad. For instance, Governor Pennypacker thinks it outrageous that a newspaper should print the headline, "The Machine is After Control of the Supreme Court," on the belief that a certain man was to be appointed prothonotary of the Supreme Court. We are told that the man's name had not been considered, and that no utterance on the subject had escaped from any member of the court. Yet the newspaper may have known that the man's name was being considered, that an effort was to be made in his behalf, that he was unfit, etc. And if it said, in view of what it knew or feared, that the machine was trying to get control of the court, it said nothing that it did not have a right to say. It did not in the headline attack the court, but the machine. We are to infer that under the new law the newspaper could be punished for libel.

Governor Pennypacker tells us that a mayor of Philadelphia has recently been called a traitor, and a United States Senator has been denounced "as a yokel with sudden brain." Of course, if the mayor is a traitor and the Senator was called a yokel, the paper can not be punished, but we understand, he was punished even under the new law. If the paper lied in both these cases, we suppose it could have been punished under the old law. But there is nothing horrible about these words as applied. There are many mayors in the United States who are traitors to the people who placed them in office, and we have heard of Senators with sudden brains. But Governor Pennypacker reaches the height of absurdity when he says:

Here is wishing that the old soldiers at Anderson may have great good cheer and joy of their annual meeting.

Have you noticed how the automobiles are obeying the new speed restrictions on the outlying paved streets, or were they going so fast you couldn't get a chance?

That the city paid for sweeping which was never done was the point of a part of the testimony last night in the Board of Works investigation. It was also in testimony that Middleton, business partner and relative of Logsdon, member of the board, had called on Furnas, one of the contractor witnesses, to warn him about talking to the newspapers. Furnas was told that if he kept on talking his own affairs would be dug up. Evidently he was not intimidated, for he authorized Middleton to "dig away."

Mr. Kern's campaign for the Democratic chairmanship appears to be very pretty; but then it may also be very foxy.

Great Britain has incidentally added 10,000 square miles of real estate to her holdings in Africa, which, it is thought, with proper improvements, will pay a fair per cent. on the investment.

The appointment of Mr. L. P. Newby to the board of the State Reformatory at Jeffersonville, will not add to the confidence in which that institution is held. Mr. Newby is an able and energetic politician and a warm supporter of the Governor's administration, but we do not see that this adds to his qualifications for the position of which he has been named.

It has happened in Indiana that politicians appointed to such offices have felt the restraining influence of public opinion and have not used their charges for mere politics. We hope that Mr. Newby will show that he belongs to this class and that he can rise to the situation.

If Colombia doesn't quit acting up about this canal business, Senator Morgan may be happy yet.

All anybody wants is fair primaries. If you don't believe it, ask any of 'em. The trouble is that there is a lack of agreement as to what is fair.

Professor James Albert Woodburn, of our State University, in his book on American politics, notes two things of the gravest import. One that the "boss" is supported and made possible by the intelligent and rich members of society. He flourishes because the capitalists of industry, the men at the head of large private affairs have need of him. Contrary to popular belief he is not the product of the slums. He is the agent of the intelligent and well-to-do, who want to plunder the people and do so by paying the boss to organize the purchasable elements. The other thing is the indifference of the great body of society to the control of affairs. We see it in a marked way in Pennsylvania. Read the paper in McClure's for May about Chris Magee and his alliance with Quay and the course of events in Pennsylvania, of which the new libel law is supposed to be a collection of his poems, including "The Early Poems," the "Songs of Summer," "The King's Bell," "The Songs of the East" and "Later Poems." Thirteen years ago his "The Lion's Cub and Other Verses" was given to the world. The work is all good, and there is enough of it to entitle Mr. Stoddard to a high place among our American poets. The poet was not a college man, yet there is a grace and fineness about some of his earlier work that we usually think of in connection with the academic spirit. The only education he had, except that which he gained from his own independent study, was had at the common schools of New York city. He did not live long, but in his pen for many years he filled a position in the New York custom house, an employment which did not apparently interfere with the pursuit of his real calling, which was that of a man of letters. He wrote much prose, and won considerable reputation as an essayist and critic. But it is by his poetry that he will be remembered—and it is a worthy monument. In his early days he was much influenced by the old romantic school—the ballads and troubadours. Much is said of the inability of our modern poets to write true songs. Stoddard, at least tried it, and with much success; as witness "The Old Hidalgo" and "A Serenade."

Stoddard, of course, did vastly stronger work than this—"The Witch's Whelp," for instance, and he dealt with much more serious themes, as in "Mors et Vita." He was an incessant worker. He was literary editor of the New York World, editor of the Atlantic, and for many years literary editor of the New York Mail and Express. He edited several volumes of poems, wrote monographs on Bryant, Irving and Shelley, and did much in essays and criticism. His "Under the Evening Lamp" is well and widely known. Mr. Stoddard won what may be regarded as the blue ribbon of American letters when, in 1878, he was selected to read the poem before the Phi Beta Kappa Society at Harvard. His was a busy and useful life, and he was a good man and an honest, conscientious and skilful workman, with a great gift of poetic expression. In his poem, "A Psalm," written in 1883, he sings:

Into the night they went,
Morning, side by side,
They gained the sacred plain,
Where the greatest dead abide.
Where grand old Homer sits
At golden state beside
Where broods in endless thought
The awful Proteus;
Where certain spirits walk,
A smile on his grave face,
Where goeth quaint Montaigne,
The wisest of his race,
Where Goethe looks through all
With that calm eye of his,
Where Keats lies in the night,
The only Shakespeare!
When the new spirit came,
They asked him, drawing near,
"Art thou become like us?"
He answered, "I am here."

Into this company "the new spirit" of this tired old man, and brave and sweet singer has gone.

All seasons are good for grafting where the public is interested.

Although no announcement has been made of the fact, it is presumed, by those who hope for the best, that the canvass for re-election will be resumed in a few days by the coliseum committee.

The investigation is throwing much light on the way the public business is done.

It is good to let good men know what is thought of them while they are yet with us. Bishop Chubb, in his way, has been enjoying the privilege of reading and hearing the kind of things that are seldom said of men in this workaday world, until the grim reaper Death has suddenly robbed us and we are brought to think of what life goes on in the world. Long years may the good bishop continue to minister to his people and to be an influence for righteousness in this community. His sense of consecration can hardly help being deepened by all the experiences of this week.

Here is wishing that the old soldiers at Anderson may have great good cheer and joy of their annual meeting.

Have you noticed how the automobiles are obeying the new speed restrictions on the outlying paved streets, or were they going so fast you couldn't get a chance?

That the city paid for sweeping which was never done was the point of a part of the testimony last night in the Board of Works investigation. It was also in testimony that Middleton, business partner and relative of Logsdon, member of the board, had called on Furnas, one of the contractor witnesses, to warn him about talking to the newspapers. Furnas was told that if he kept on talking his own affairs would be dug up. Evidently he was not intimidated, for he authorized Middleton to "dig away."

Mr. Kern's campaign for the Democratic chairmanship appears to be very pretty; but then it may also be very foxy.

Great Britain has incidentally added 10,000 square miles of real estate to her holdings in Africa, which, it is thought, with proper improvements, will pay a fair per cent. on the investment.

The appointment of Mr. L. P. Newby to the board of the State Reformatory at Jeffersonville, will not add to the confidence in which that institution is held. Mr. Newby is an able and energetic politician and a warm supporter of the Governor's administration, but we do not see that this adds to his qualifications for the position of which he has been named.

It has happened in Indiana that politicians appointed to such offices have felt the restraining influence of public opinion and have not used their charges for mere politics. We hope that Mr. Newby will show that he belongs to this class and that he can rise to the situation.

If Colombia doesn't quit acting up about this canal business, Senator Morgan may be happy yet.

All anybody wants is fair primaries. If you don't believe it, ask any of 'em. The trouble is that there is a lack of agreement as to what is fair.

Professor James Albert Woodburn, of our State University, in his book on American politics, notes two things of the gravest import. One that the "boss" is supported and made possible by the intelligent and rich members of society. He flourishes because the capitalists of industry, the men at the head of large private affairs have need of him. Contrary to popular belief he is not the product of the slums. He is the agent of the intelligent and well-to-do, who want to plunder the people and do so by paying the boss to organize the purchasable elements. The other thing is the indifference of the great body of society to the control of affairs. We see it in a marked way in Pennsylvania. Read the paper in McClure's for May about Chris Magee and his alliance with Quay and the course of events in Pennsylvania, of which the new libel law is supposed to be a collection of his poems, including "The Early Poems," the "Songs of Summer," "The King's Bell," "The Songs of the East" and "Later Poems." Thirteen years ago his "The Lion's Cub and Other Verses" was given to the world. The work is all good, and there is enough of it to entitle Mr. Stoddard to a high place among our American poets. The poet was not a college man, yet there is a grace and fineness about some of his earlier work that we usually think of in connection with the academic spirit. The only education he had, except that which he gained from his own independent study, was had at the common schools of New York city. He did not live long, but in his pen for many years he filled a position in the New York custom house, an employment which did not apparently interfere with the pursuit of his real calling, which was that of a man of letters. He wrote much prose, and won considerable reputation as an essayist and critic. But it is by his poetry that he will be remembered—and it is a worthy monument. In his early days he was much influenced by the old romantic school—the ballads and troubadours. Much is said of the inability of our modern poets to write true songs. Stoddard, at least tried it, and with much success; as witness "The Old Hidalgo" and "A Serenade."

DR. EVAN HADLEY DEAD AT HIS RESIDENCE

PRACTICED IN INDIANAPOLIS FOR MANY YEARS.

PROMINENT IN PROFESSION

Dr. Evan Hadley, who for thirty years was a leading practitioner of this city, died yesterday at his home in Mooreville, Ind., of organic brain disease, from which he had suffered for nearly two years. It was on account of heart trouble that Dr. Hadley retired from this city to Mooreville, about eighteen months ago.

When he retired to Mooreville, his old home, he had built upon a hilltop a home overlooking his landscape. His home was surrounded with flowers and in them he took much pleasure, for he was an enthusiastic student of botany.

Dr. Hadley was born in Mooreville, January 4, 1846. He received a common school education and then received a three years' course in Earlham College. He then entered the Medical College of Indiana and graduated from its first class, in 1870. After serving for one year as an intern in the City Hospital, he became superintendent of the hospital and retained the position for two years. He then went to the College of Medicine of Brooklyn, N. Y., and took a post-graduate course in surgery.

During many years of his early practice in this city, Dr. Hadley made his home in Fletcher avenue, moving from there in 1890 to his home in North Delaware street, where he lived until he left this city. His last professional connection in this city was with Dr. A. C. Kimberlin.

Medical College Professor.
He was professor of clinical medicine for the Indiana Medical College and was attending and consulting physician for several of the charitable institutions of the city. In 1888 he was president of the Marion County Medical Society. Much charity practice was done by him, though he had a clientele of many of the most influential and wealthy residents of the city. He served as consulting physician in the last illness of ex-President Benjamin Harrison.

He leaves his wife, whom he married

E. T. GILLILAND AT HIS NEW YORK HOME

A FAMOUS INVENTOR KNOWN IN INDIANAPOLIS.

ASSOCIATED WITH EDISON

Ezra Torrence Gilliland, age fifty-eight years, died at his home in Pelham Manor, Westchester county, N. Y., this morning. He had been suffering from Bright's disease. He began to fail four or five months ago and death was not unexpected. He was born in New York State on June 17, 1845. He was well-known in Indianapolis.

He opened the first telephone exchange in this city, and during his residence here he was married to Miss Lillian M. Johnson, the daughter of Captain Johnson, formerly of Madison. At various times he has been interested in business ventures in Indianapolis, and socially he was well known. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made. He will probably be buried in New York or in Adrian, Mich.

Mr. Gilliland began life as a telegraph operator on the Lake Shore railroad, and in his boyhood days became acquainted with Edison. He developed a friendship which lasted all through life. They were associated in many business enterprises, and the development of the telephone and phonograph he shared honors with Mr. Edison.

Inventor of Switchboard.
The fundamental principles of the switchboard, used by every telephone system throughout the world, is an invention of Mr. Gilliland, and the perfect transmitter is also the result of his work.

Mr. Gilliland organized and constructed the first telephone exchange in Indianapolis, which at that time was situated in the Vance block—present the Indiana Trust block. That was in the year 1876.

He was also the inventor of the telephone exchange and the Indiana rights of the telephone and he operated the Indianapolis exchange for a year or more and sold

BIDS RECEIVED FOR TWO NEW MARKET HOUSES

COST OF FLOWER AND VEGETABLE BUILDINGS $34,124.

MORE THAN APPROPRIATION

Bids were received to-day by the Board of Public Works for the construction of a general vegetable market building on the East Market space, and a flower and fruit market building between Tomlinson Hall and the meat market building. The lowest bids make a total of $34,124 at the cost of both improvements, while the appropriation is only $30,000. The Board of Works may make up the sum of the lowest bid by using a part of the annual appropriation for public buildings and repairs.

Some of the bids were conditional upon the mills furnishing material, and the board was not satisfied with them. The board wants the buildings completed within ninety days, in order that the markets will not be deprived of their stands too long.

The Different Bids.
The total of the lowest bids for the flower and fruit structure was $8,633.30, of which the W. P. Jungclauss company bid $2,750 for the general work, and the Noelle-Richards company $1,933.30 for the steel work.

The total of the lowest bids on the vegetable market to be built east of the meat market building was $25,491, of which the William P. Jungclauss company bid $18,773 on the general work and Noelle-Richards $6,718 for the steel work. The board provides for the use of a great deal of glass.

To Improve West Street.
The Board of Works to-day adopted a resolution for improving West street, from North to ninety feet north of Fourteenth street, with flint rock macadam, brick gutters and curb. This is the street where there has been a long fight about pavements.

HUSBAND KILLED BY BOXERS.
Address of Mrs. Davis Before Congressionalists' Convention.

The General Association of the Congregational Churches continued its sessions this morning with the Rev. Charles W. Coates as moderator. The reports included those from H. L. Whitehead, of the Central association; A. M. Oswalt, of the Kalamazoo association; and the Rev. O. L. Kiplinger, of the Michigan association. The Rev. E. D. Curtis, secretary of the executive committee, gave the report of the work in the State, which was pronounced one of the best reports ever submitted to the association. It showed an advance in missionary work done by Congregationalists.

Mrs. Lydia Lord Davis gave an account of missionary work in China. Mrs. Davis worked in that country for fourteen years, and while on a visit to this country during the epidemic of the boxers in China she received the news that her husband had been killed.

PRESIDENT OF THE KIKKENAHA CLUB.

Gentlemen: I suffered with Eczema on the hands and face for over a year. It was not only annoying and painful, but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets. I tried at least a dozen soaps and salves, and became very much discouraged, until I read in the papers of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S., and determined to give it a month's trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as soft and smooth as an infant's. This was a year ago, and I have never had any trouble since.

MISS GENEVA BRIGGS.
216 S. Seventh Street, Minneapolis, Minn.

The humors and poisons that produce the itching eruption, roughness and redness of the skin, must be rooted out before there is complete relief from the terrors of Eczema. Nothing applied externally does any permanent good, for whenever the blood is overheated, or the skin is reacting during Spring and Summer, the disease breaks out again. You can't rely upon washes, soaps and salves, or such things as are applied to the surface, for they do not reach the seat of the trouble, which is internal and deeply implanted in the system; the blood is aflame with the itching, burning humors, which are carried by the circulation to the surface and are being constantly forced out through the glands and pores of the skin, and you can never heal the sores or stop the aggravating eruptions with external applications.

To neutralize the acids in the blood and expel the humors and poisons is the only way to get permanently rid of this torturing skin trouble, and no remedy known does this so quickly and thoroughly as S. S. S. It purifies the blood and restores it to health, and the outbreak of the poison through the skin ceases, and the sores and eruption gradually disappear. S. S. S. builds up the thin acid blood, makes it rich and strong, and restores to it all the elements of nutrition, and drives from the circulation all impurities; and under the tonic effect of S. S. S. the general system is invigorated and toned up, and you not only get rid of your old skin trouble, but the health is benefited in every way. S. S. S. being a strictly vegetable medicine, acts gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as do Arsenic, Potash and other minerals which are usually prescribed in skin diseases.

Eczema cannot be cured by anything applied to the surface of the body; the blood must be purified and the cause removed, and in no other way can this deep-seated skin disease be reached. If you have Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Nettle Rash, or any form of Eczema, you will find S. S. S. does its work well and thoroughly, and relieves the itching and burning, soreness and pain, and soon produces a lasting cure.

Write us, and medical advice or any special information desired about this King of Skin Terrors will be given without charge.

A FEARFUL RIDDLE

CHAPTER IX.

"It was born a slave near the lower part of the Shenandoah river, in Virginia, the property of Abraham Starr, a very rich old gentleman, master of several plantations and many negroes. He was in his declining years when I came into this world; I do not believe I ever saw him, but I can only remember of having heard of him; he was always spoken of as a very white-haired, and a very kind old man. He had an only daughter, Margaret, his sole heir, who was at the time of my first faint memory about twenty years old.

A year after the death of Abraham Starr, Margaret married a gentleman from New Orleans by the name of Whitmore—William Whitmore. They lived on the plantation for a year or two, during which time a son was born to them. They named him Waldon.

Now, in accordance with the wishes of the husband, the family left the plantation and moved to New Orleans; but Mrs. Whitmore's health was very poor in the far South, and after two years' absence they returned to the plantation. Perhaps she wished to return because she had promised her father to keep up the plantation and continue the beautiful life he had led there with his wife and an only child. Perhaps, too, she had promised him that her children should be born there, in the same house where she had been born and had grown into womanhood, and from which she had never gone more than ten or fifteen miles, and then always in the company of her father.

I do not know that she promised these things, but from what I have several times heard, she had done so. No matter what she promised the good, white-haired father in the time of her girlhood, when to her a plantation was the world, she had now a strong desire to go back to the quiet life which she had lived before her marriage. She stayed on the plantation during their absence.

According to the slave book of the Starr plantation, in which births, deaths, purchases and sales of slaves were recorded, there would be six years old on September 13, this year 1865. My birthday did not have any celebration, perhaps because myself no one knew of it; and I should never have known had it not been that, sometimes looking over the book, trying to make out the letters and figures, it was in this way, with the slave book, that the masters who caught me at the book one day, that I found out my name was Blanchard, my mother's name, and that my birthday was on the above date.

How an abscess in the Fallopian Tubes of Mrs. Hollinger was removed without a surgical operation.
"I had an abscess in my side in the Fallopian tube (the Fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physician said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once."—Mrs. I. A. S. HOLLINGER, Stillville, Ohio.—$5000 for full original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

It would seem by this statement that women would save time and much sickness if they would get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and also write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helps. No other person can give such helpful advice as Mrs. Pinkham to women who are sick.

Every day, after all, September 19 was an eventful day in the quiet household of the plantation; on that day a second son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore. This was two months after they had returned from New Orleans. This second son was named William.

It was one day standing near the house holding the book and the horse until he should come to mount and ride away. After he had gone a little while away, I saw that it was Mr. Whitmore. He was riding a horse, and I saw him go to the dining-room door. "Come here, nigger," he called in a loud voice. "Come here, nigger."

"Blanchard," I replied.
"Yes, you are in the house."

"I was taken into Mrs. Whitmore's private chamber. It was the first time I had ever been inside the house."

"Blanchard, you say is your name?"
"Yes, Mrs. Whitmore. She is a slender, pale lady, still worn from the birth of her child."

"Who named you?"
"I do not know, ma'am."

"How do you know that is your name?"
"It says so in the slave book."

"Bring me the book."

"I brought the book and showed her the page, name, number, location of the cabin which I was born, and date of birth. I said that it was a nigger in the name of the nation, and the master of war to the Shenandoah valley. The nigger was to be a great sacrifice in a night of moments of years."

Mrs. Whitmore made her last visit to Frederickburg. The life which she had lived with her father was destined never to return. She had not returned in her marriage; she had been comparatively happy, but there were some natural differences between her and her husband which prevented them from understanding each other—so my master afterward told me.

The mother saw now that even the best of her husband was like a shadow, destroyed, that her husband and at least one of her sons were to be dragged into the bitter war, the strength of which she had seen, but which she had never seen. She was to be a great sacrifice in a night of moments of years."

HASTY TO THE MARRIAGE

MRS. ESTELLE COIT DOES NOT FEAR CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

IN POSSESSION OF $12,000

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

MUNCIE, Ind., May 12.—"If Mrs. Estelle Coit gave her husband poison to get possession of his property after he had made him drunk and compelled him to will all his property to her, and if she married and undivorced from four men at the time she married Coit, why do not the Texas authorities demand her arrest and return to Texas?" asked an attorney who is interested in the case.

Going upon the principle that "possession is nine points of the law," and as she is in possession of $12,000 derived from the sale of the James Coit estate, and has the title to 20,000 of her late husband's Texas land in her name, Mrs. Coit says she is not worrying much about the action of the Texas and New York heirs. It is plain that she does not fear their bringing criminal proceedings against her to substantiate their charges of murder and bigamy.

Offered to Compromise.

"In a trial upon any point, we could best the heirs, but as long as we have already won, why should we give our opponents a chance to get at us?" asked attorney Fitch, lawyer for Mrs. Coit.

Continuing, he said, "Why should we offer to compromise their claims for a few hundred dollars, but we turned them down because we knew the law was with us."

There is a story that when attorney Fitch made one of his trips to Texas in the interest of his client, he had a narrow escape by the skin of his teeth from those interested in the case, but if this is true, the attorney says nothing about it.

NEW LAW IS DEFECTIVE.

St. Joseph County Auditor Will Not Loan Unless Mandated.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 12.—An examination of the records of St. Joseph county shows that in the past three years there have been four sales for default in school fund loans, and only in one of these was there any loss; about $400 on Mishawaka property. About $100,000 remains outstanding in these loans, while $60,000 remains awaiting a borrower. The great care has been taken in making loans. The present county auditor, John M. Brown, is a very conservative official, and he refuses to issue any loans under the law passed by the last Legislature, unless mandated by the courts.

Mr. Brown asserts that if the old law on school loans was used in its construction, the new one, with its provision for loaning upon a percentage of the valuation of the land, and also upon the buildings' valuation, when covered by fire and tornado insurance, is infinitely worse. The loans upon the land are all right, but he mentions as an illustration that a man would be allowed to borrow money upon his dwelling, and being able to secure the same with the necessary insurance, finds at the end of the nominal term for which the loan is made that the interest has accumulated to such an extent that he is unable to pay anything like the same figure for a longer time, owing to deterioration, although the borrower expects the loan to continue as it always has been allowed to continue in the past. He is unable to provision a chance for loss, hence his refusal to make a loan.

The auditor also claims that every loan made during the past eight years under the old arrangement of a property owner picking out appraisers, instead of the county commissioners making a disinterested selection, is a legal one. He says the law plainly puts the duty of selection on the commissioners, and gives an instance of what he had learned from a man who was sent away to get his appraisers, and it was afterward discovered that he had put the money the two appraisers expected to share in the same. The school money borrowed by the township, which is in St. Joe county if Auditor Brown's rulings are sustained.

EMPLOYING THE CONVICTS.

First Step Toward Establishing a Trade School.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., May 12.—A number of buildings connected with the Jeffersonville Reformatory are receiving a coat of paint at the hands of convicts under instruction of capable men. This is the first step in the direction of trade school, which is the majority of the convicts have no trades.

The contracts of the different manufacturing industries at the Reformatory for convict labor will expire in 1936, and it is then intended to turn the institution into a training school, where those received may be taught useful trades. An auto physical development has also been introduced; a drill class for those physically unfit for contract work. One-third of the men are in that class, and they are daily put through a series of athletic movements, producing the most gratifying results.

It is expected that shortly a large number of "trusties" will be in the institution, and the forestry reformatory. This labor will be eagerly sought by the better class of prisoners, as it affords them a liberty, besides release from prison walls.

RAILWAY Y. M. C. A. HALL.

Governor Durbin Chief Speaker in Dedication Ceremony.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 12.—The new Monon railway Y. M. C. A. building was dedicated last night with appropriate services, Governor Durbin delivering the principal address. Railway officials with Monon employees were there in force, with their wives and children. The building was crowded to overflowing. The interior was handsomely decorated, and the program was excellent throughout. The Governor was given an enthusiastic reception. Among the list of regret was one from President McMillan of the railway, who donated $7,500 toward the structure, leaving the employees to contribute $2,000. The total cost of the building is $10,000. The chief executive was met at the train and escorted to the Hotel Lafayette, where he was entertained by the railway officials. The ceremony was headed by trainmasters Quimby and Suse, and the same ceremony attended his transfer to the hall, where the exercises were held. Governor Durbin cordially approved the objects of the institution, and pointed out that there were at least fifteen other great railroad crossings in the State in which similar homes should be located.

BURIAL OF BANKER MILTON SHIRK.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

PERU, Ind., May 12.—Funeral services over the body of the late Milton Shirk, the wealthy banker of this city, were held yesterday afternoon. There was a public service at the Baptist church. The Rev. D. H. Cooper was assisted by the Rev. Glenn E. Tipton. The funeral service was held at the Shirk home afterward, and it was nearly dusk when the body was placed in its final resting place. Many out-of-town people were in attendance.

TENNYSON PARLIAMENT.

Judge Baldwin's Exposition has Proved a Gratifying Success.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., May 12.—The Tennyson Parliament, which Judge Daniel P. Baldwin has been conducting at Wabash College for two weeks past, and which closes Thursday, has been a most gratifying success. The attendance has been over one hundred daily. In addition to the students and an occasional professor, the high schools of the city have sent their English classes and teachers, and the various literary clubs their members.

The parliament has given its best attention to the study of the great poet. The whole of the "In Memoriam" has been carefully considered, as well as other leading poems, including "The Idylls of the King." The idea that Judge Baldwin had worked upon is to let Tennyson do his own talking, and he has been most successful in this. He has been most successful in this. He has been most successful in this.

For the first time in the history of the venerable college the swish of silken garments and the glint of gay summer hats have been a regular feature of the recitation rooms. It has even come to pass that "Carfax" students have had to give up their seats to girls. And yet the earth has not opened up to swallow the offenders. The students have been found that co-education is the easiest and simplest thing in the world. A college social Thursday evening will serve as a close to the parliament, which has been an enjoyable and profitable May day event at Wabash.

RECORD OF A GUARDSMAN.

Service of Country Boy in Indiana National Guard.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

DANVILLE, Ind., May 12.—Sergeant Osa S. Dooley, of Company K, Second Indiana National Guard, whose excellent Monday night, held a record in attendance and promptness in the performance of duty. Despite the fact that Sergeant Dooley lives in the country, two miles from Danville, during his three years as a member of the company he has not missed a single drill or office school.

The first year of his service the company had two drill nights each week, and the two following, one a week. He enlisted as a private, and was promoted to first duty sergeant, and will go higher before long. The officers of Company K are proud of the record of Sergeant Dooley. He is one of the best in the regiment, and he has been a member of the company since the first of the war.

The company was inspected last night by Captain J. H. Smith, of the Twentieth Infantry, and Col. Harry B. Smith, and the inspectors were pleased with the company's record. The company is now a little over three years old and has forty-seven members. J. K. Kinter is captain, Frank R. Kinter is lieutenant, and Walter S. Grow second lieutenant.

CAPTURED BY FARMERS.

Edward Stanley Sent to Prison for Stealing Horse and Buggy.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.)

MUNCIE, Ind., May 12.—Farmers yesterday captured Edward Stanley after a hot chase and gave him over to the police. He pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing a horse and buggy. A few minutes later he made a similar plea in the Circuit Court, and was sentenced to the Jeffersonville Reformatory.

Stanley is wanted in nearly half the counties of Indiana on charges of shooting with intent to kill and larceny. A few months ago he was arrested by the police of this city, and was taken to jail in a buggy. After shooting the officer he escaped. ### Half Price for New Gingham

We are willing to lose money on just fifty-five pieces of this season's choice Dress Gingham in order to bring an unusually large stock down to normal proportions. Of course such an unusual price-cut is going to create considerable interest among people who know gingham values—perhaps a crowded counter may result, but this latter contingency will be met by an increased number of salesmen.

Colors and designs are well assorted, but naturally early choosers will have the wider choice. Sale begins at 8 a. m. Thursday morning.

12c a yard pays for our regular 25c a yard Dress and Waist Gingham—30 pieces in the 32-inch width, up-to-date stripes and choice colorings.

29c a yard is the price of genuine Silk Gingham. The sort sold always and everywhere at 50c a yard—silk warp goods for the price of all cotton. There are fifteen pieces to sell.

55c a yard gives you choice of ten styles of our choicest Imported Novelty Gingham and Zephyrs, regularly this quality costs you 50c a yard.

Butcher's Linen Cheaper

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

THERE ARE NOW 42,606 IN INDIANAPOLIS.

SCHOOL BOARD BUSINESS

At the meeting of the School Board last night John E. Cleland, business director, reported that the school enumeration of Indianapolis for 1903 is 42,606, a gain of 1,079 over 1902. Of the total school population, 3,388 are colored. The enumeration is used by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in the distribution of Public Instruction in the distribution of school revenue. The greatest gain in school population was shown in the district north of Tenth street and east of the Monon tracks.

The board approved Superintendent Kendall's recommendation that this year the half-day sessions be for only two weeks, instead of three as heretofore, because of the disturbance, smallpox caused last winter. The superintendent's suggestion that a school building be rented to the teachers of the high school at a nominal sum in which to conduct a summer high school was referred to the business director.

A report of the business director showed that the total cost of coal for the school year about to close was less than that of the previous year, although prices were high this year. The total cost last year was $13,372.75, while for this year it was $13,450.00. Some forty more rooms were heated this year than last. The saving is attributed to improvements in heating systems.

For Enlarged Playground.
To enlarge the Tuxedo building playground six lots east of it were bought. Plans for heating the new Irvington school were submitted and referred to the business director for investigation.

The board talked over the high bids submitted by contractors for the new building at the corner of Senate and Walnut street to find some way of reducing the cost. The high bids were attributed to high prices of labor and uncertainty on the part of contractors of being able to employ enough. The board estimated from the bids on the new building at Senate and Walnut street that the cost of buildings planned would be about $5,000 in excess of all the money available.

The city librarian reported a gift from Daniel W. Howe of 534 books and fifty-two pamphlets of Indiana history and law.

Informal Dance at Shortridge.
The class of 1903, of Shortridge High School, will give its last informal dance in the corridors of the school Friday evening. The proceeds will go to the fund which has been raised by the class for the purchase of a new printing press for the school paper, the Echo. About $1,000 has already been raised.

The hall of the school will be decorated for the occasion. A nominal admission will be charged. Efforts will be made to have the affair a social success rather than a financial one.

IT IS CHEAPER TO USE COKE THAN ANTHRACITE

ADDRESS OF A COAL EXPERT AT MASONIC HALL.

VARIOUS KINDS OF THE FUEL

Mr. C. Hayette, of Chicago, one of the best-informed coal experts in the country, delivered a lecture on "Coal is King," in Masonic Hall, last night, before No. 4 of the National Association of Stationary Engineers and their invited guests. He went thoroughly into the proper use of coal and the best coal for various uses.

In addition to advising the engineers, he made some suggestion as to the use of coal in dwellings, recommending seventy-two-hour coke—generally known as foundry coke—instead of anthracite. He said that this coke should be crushed to domestic size, and that its use would cut the coal bill from 40 to 50 per cent. of what it would be were anthracite used, as one ton of the coke will last as long or longer than one ton of anthracite.

He explained that coke does not require as much oxygen as coal, and that instead of throwing the draft wide open and "letting her rip," the draft should not be open more than two inches. He also advised that sufficient coal for two or three months should be stored away this fall, by the big consumers, as the price would surely jump, but he said that this coal should be stored where it would not be damaged other property if it ignited through spontaneous combustion, to which it is liable.

Its Use Measures Civilization.

In opening his address, Mr. Hayette gave a brief sketch of the history of the early use of coal and stated that the quantity consumed is a fair standard of measurement of the civilization of the age. He showed that he was not partial to the use of natural gas or crude oil as fuel, saying that they were not economical and pointing out the fact that the Standard Oil Company does not use its crude oil as a fuel in its own plants. He gave figures to show that the cost of evaporating 1,000 pounds of water was 15 cents with crude oil and 7.5 cents with Ohio screenings.

In speaking of the present extravagant use of coal, he said that at the present rate of consumption there was enough untraded coal to last 200 years and enough bituminous coal to last 250 years. He then spoke briefly of the coal trust and its operations. He spoke most highly of the Pocahontas mines, saying that it is used on the war vessels of the United States. He then showed a number of stereoscopic views of various kinds of coal to show the prevalence in some of sulphur, iron and slate.

The signs of the presence of these minerals should be carefully watched for by the buyers, he explained. The speaker then took occasion to advise the engineers to study industriously, that they might fit themselves for the head of the profession, and suggest that a note book should be their constant companion.

Advice for Owners of Plants.

He also entered a word of advice for the owners of plants, saying that they should not undertake to judge what was needed by the engineer unless they expected to stand responsible for results.

By means of the stereoscopic he showed a simple process of finding the cost of evaporating a fixed quantity of water, and also showed as example the cost of evaporating 1,000 pounds of water by the use of various kinds of fuel. He also warned against taking the capacity of the boiler, showing by figures the extravagance in coal that results.

In closing, he spoke briefly on the importance of proper chimneys or stacks, and said that in his experience he had found that not more than one smoke-stack in twenty was suitable for the work. It was expected to do, and that in ninety-nine cases in a hundred when an automatic stoker was thrown out, investigation would show that the fault was not in the stoker but in the lack of draft on account of a poor stack.

MUSIKVEREIN CONCERT.

An Attractive Program Which a Large Audience Enjoyed.

The Musikverein, whose concerts are ordinarily open only to members, last night extended its hospitality to the public with one of its most attractive programs of the year. These public concerts, closing the season, were begun last year, and have been so much appreciated that they will be continued permanently. A very large audience was present last night and generously applauded the music.

The program was chiefly made up of numbers chosen from the various programs given earlier in the season, and naturally this brought together the most popular and interesting compositions of the whole year. The soloists for the evening were Messrs. Josephine Breuninger, soprano, and William H. Morrison, Jr., baritone. A special incident of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Ernest Hoff of a handsome bouquet at the close of the first number, in recognition of his services as director of the society.

Weighing of Mail Finished.
The weighing of the Government mail for Ohio and Indiana of the fifth division of the railway mail service, which has been going on since March 4, has been finished, and the reports of the results will be sent to the department at Washington, to form a basis for the next contract with the carriers. The new contract for four years, will be made early in July. The work of the weighers showed that there has been a great increase in the amount of mail handled, especially newspapers and magazines.

Methodist Banquet Next Week.
At the Methodist banquet to be given at the Denison the evening of May 22, there will be provision made for 500 guests. The affair is not invitation, but all who wish to attend must get tickets from the pastors of the churches to which they belong. A limited number of extra tickets have been placed in the hands of O. H. Palmer, 280 Indiana Trust Building, for the accommodation of Methodist not members of any of the city churches.

Little Stories of Daily Life

There are numerous reasons for girls and their beards to fall out. Here is the reason that a Central-avenue girl fell out with her hair: He was at his boarding-house last Sunday afternoon with another one of the boarders, and the landlady was away. He concluded to go to his girl's house during the afternoon and called her up by telephone. He said just about to say "hello," the house dog began to bark furiously. It made him impetuous, and in an unguarded moment he turned to his fellow boarder and roared: "Can't you keep that (here was a howl) that barks with (here was a howl) ham) dog quiet for a minute?" Then he turned again to the telephone just in time to recognize his girl's voice.

"Will you be home this afternoon, Carrie?" said he in a modulated voice.

"No, I will not," was the curt answer.

Then he fell over into a rocking chair and began to breathe heavily.

"What is the matter, George?" asked his companion.

"Why, the blamed receiver was down, and she heard me swear!"

A stranger at the State House went to Samuel Ware, operator of the elevator, and asked:

"Is the Governor Durbin in?"

"There's his office," the elevator man said, as he pointed to an open door ten feet away.

The stranger went in the office and returned in about a minute.

"Did you see the Governor?" Ware asked.

"Yes—he was there," said the stranger, "but he was busy pounding a type-writing machine and I thought I wouldn't bother him."

The man who was pounding the writing machine was Patrick J. Flanagan, one of the Governor's stenographers.
